Statistics

- Worldwide confirmed cases surpassed 62 million during the weekend, with more than 1 million new infections added since Friday. Total deaths neared 1.5 million.

- In the ASEAN+3 region, more than 13,700 new cases were reported yesterday, marking the third day of the region seeing at least 13,000 daily new cases.

- New cases in Japan reached at least 2,050 yesterday, the fourth consecutive day of new infections above 2,000. Tokyo accounted for 418 of the new infections, a decrease from the previous day's figure.

- Hong Kong reported 115 new infections yesterday, the highest since early August. Of the new cases, 109 were local infections. At least 60 of yesterday's new cases were linked to a cluster of dance studios, while more than 20 remains unlinked to known cases.

- Korea saw its level of new infections easing during the weekend. It reported nearly 440 new cases yesterday, pushing total confirmed infections above 34,200. Of the new cases, 24 were imported.

- New infections in Myanmar reached above 1,500 yesterday, reversing the easing trend seen in the last two days. Total confirmed infections neared 89,500, while deaths surpassed 1,900.

- New deaths in Turkey continued to reach new highs. 185 new fatalities were reported yesterday, the seventh consecutive day of increasing fatalities. It also reported at least 29,000 new infections.

News

- Hong Kong yesterday announced that it will be suspending in-person classes beginning December 2, Wednesday. The suspension is expected to remain in place until schools begin their December holiday break. The new rule covers all kindergartens, primary and secondary schools, as well as those offering non-local curriculum.

- The United Kingdom is expected to approve the vaccine candidate developed by Pfizer and BioNTech as early as next week, according to media reports. Health authorities also announced yesterday that they increased the order for the vaccine developed by US firm Moderna from 5 million to 7 million doses. Doctors have earlier been put on standby for a possible immunization rollout before Christmas.

- Dr. Anthony Fauci, US top infectious disease expert, warned yesterday that the United States might see "surge upon a surge" of new infections in the next few weeks, following this year's Thanksgiving. Current social distancing rules are thus unlikely to be relaxed before the holidays.
